

This sandbox uses a pseudo-whitelist and namespace approach with a custom resource monitor. The file, required to be called "program.input", is read in and checked for any strings not in the whitelist, which is only "__". Then the input code is run with a custom global namespace, being "__builtins__" set to 'None', and a custom local namespace, which is listed in the sandbox code.